About Me

About Me

My Name is Ryan Kennedy a Graphic Designer and Artist with a passion for athletics and distance Running. I have been studying graphic design at Illinois State University, I am also a distance runner for the university. I am currently certified to coach cross country by USATF. I also am very interested in design and animation, animation has become more of a hobby however it is something id like to incorporate with my other passions.

Experience

As a designer and someone who has been around running his whole life my experience centers heavily on design and running. I am a USATF certified Cross Country coach as well as an experienced distance runner. I also am working toward my major in Graphic Design and have been working on design since highschool. I am also a painter and work on charcoal drawings.

I have been running for over a decade, I started as a little kid running with his dad and became a division 1 distance runner. Running occupies most of my thoughts and time with most of the past few months consisting of constant 100 mile weeks.
